Doctor Pu Miaoshui for liver transplant operations at Guangzhou Military Region General Hospital

Date: January 23,2017 (Phone number: +86+13682253550)

Summary

Liver transplants are normal operations for this hospital. They perform about 50 or 60 cases a year. The donor wait time is about a month. Currently, there are four hospitals in Guangzhou that are doing liver transplants, and they did more cases in the past. According to Pu, previously, the use of organs from death-row inmates and [Falun] Gong practitioners was legal. Now it is not illegal, but as the state forbids it, such organs cannot be used.

1. The donor wait time is about a month.
2. “There are now temporarily four hospitals in Guangzhou [doing it]. Our General Hospital, two hospitals affiliated with Sun Yat-sen University, and in Zhongshan, China Southern Airlines Hospital, a total of four hospitals.”
3. “[The use of organs from death-row inmates and (Falun) Gong practitioners] was legal before, now it is not illegal, but now it has been forbidden by the government. It does not work when the state says no. It is not an issue of legality.”

Phone Investigation Recording

... [No one answered the phone...noises]

Doctor Pu: Hello?

Doctor Pu: Hello?

Investigator: Hello!

Doctor Pu: Hi!

Investigator: Hi, Doctor Pu, Doctor Pu, my Wi-Fi got disconnected just now...So it has not gone through later on... Hello

Doctor Pu: ... The signal was not good just now.

Investigator: Yeah, yeah, my Wi-Fi got disconnected just now, suddenly got disconnected. I was still talking to you and didn't know it was disconnected. Then I thought why there was no sound.

Doctor Pu: ... The signal was not good, so I hanged up...So you can send your information [to me] on WeChat, and then we can contact again.

Investigator: Right, right, right. That is, your hospital is very... [Organ transplants are] normal [operations]?

Doctor Pu: We are doing OK now, about 50 or 60 cases a year. For Hepatitis C, there is an anti-Hepatitis medicine, and the treatment's effect is alright. There are imported, domestic and jointly produced [drugs], and they are all OK. You can use them first. That drug has no side effects.

Investigator: That is to say.... If he wants to do it, I'll have to discuss with him when I go back. If we go to your hospital, how long does he have to wait before doing [the surgery]?

Doctor Pu: Uh, generally, about a month or so.

Investigator: A month or so, right?

Doctor Pu: A month or so, yeah, yeah, yeah.

Investigator: Guangzhou Military Region General Hospital... You see, now there are so many [hospitals] in Guangzhou doing it. Does your hospital do a lot and well?

Doctor Pu: There are now temporarily four hospitals in Guangzhou [doing it]. We are one of them. Our General Hospital, two hospitals affiliated with Sun Yat-sen University, and in Zhongshan, China Southern Airlines Hospital, a total of four hospitals.

Investigator: Oh, four hospitals, and this is one of them.

Doctor Pu: Correct.... Later on there may be more... These four hospitals have done more.

Investigator: If we give them more money, can we still use the kind [of organs], uh, we used previously, that is, uh, the kind of [organs from] death-row-inmates or [Falun] Gong practitioners?

Doctor Pu: Now we don't have them. They have been abolished a long time ago, no.

Investigator: Can't do it? Then, if we give more [money] ---

Doctor Pu: Now this has been abolished by the state policy...

Investigator: Oh, more money still won't do, right?

Doctor Pu: It was legal before, now it is not illegal, but now it has been forbidden by the government.

Investigator: It is illegal now, it was legal before, but now illegal?

Doctor Pu: ... It does not work when the state says no. It is not an issue of legality.

Investigator: But you see, I find this so strange. If you say that if we have so many hospitals doing it, how can there be so many donors, and they don't have this kind of [organs]...?

Doctor Pu: there is a lack, lack of donors. The donors are certainly in shortage.

Investigator: Oh ~

Doctor Pu: .... Just send your information over. When necessary, if you really need to do the transplant, I will contact you again for registration.

Investigator: ...okay, I will talk to my nephew about this...

Doctor Pu: .... Then you send the information over first, OK?
