Phone Investigation Recording

Investigator: Oh, do you have a special department [excising organs] in the hospital? Not done by yourselves?

Yang Zhijian: The hospital is doing it. It's the hospital doing it. It has a set of specific procedures.

Investigator: With the procedures, you mean that after the executed prisoners are shot, you can immediately....

Yang Zhijian: No. Now there are no more executed prisoners. Now there are no more executed prisoners. We did that before.

Investigator: I mean executed prisoners...

Yang Zhijian: In the past, we went to the execution grounds to excise organs.

Investigator: You went to the execution grounds to get organs. What about the people on the execution grounds?

Yang Zhijian: Now there are no more executed prisoners.

Investigator: There are no more. Then the state would still need to shoot prisoners. How come there are no more?

Yang Zhijian: [The organs of] the prisoners shot to death are not allowed to be used. It would be against human rights.
